Captain Vane Returns From Korean Duty

Captain Frank E. Vane, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Vane of 224 East Sierra Madre Blvd., recently returned to Sierra Madre after being released to inactive duty, and is now associated with the Studebaker Pacific Corporation in Los Angeles.

Captain Vane's last active service was with the Allied Military Government in Korea, where he spent nine months. Prior to going overseas he was with the Air Force, section of the Adjutant General's office in Washington, D. C. and at Love Field, Texas, and Miami, Florida.

After training for the diplomatic field, he was associated with the War Production Board, before entering military service. While on terminal leave, Capt. and Mrs. Vane and son made a trip through Canada, from which they recently returned.

Who Blows The Siren And Why

I have been a resident of Sierra Madre for a good number of years and to this day still don't know what makes the "Whistle Blow". Every once in a while when the subject comes up, I have asked others if they knew, but no, they didn't know either, and also got to wondering about it. Does the telephone operator push a button and make it blow, or does a policeman? I would surely like to know, and I think that a few other residents would also like to satisfy their curiosity.

Editor's Note—The city siren is an instrument of emergency. Its fundamental use is to call the fire department to fires. Inasmuch as the firemen with exception of the fire chief and man on duty in the fire hall are voluntary fire fighters, there must be a signal loud enough to get their attention. It is not a siren, but a whistle. It is in the city. The number of blasts tells the location of the fire.

It is required by law that the siren be tested once a day for safety's sake and apparently the noon and 9:00 p. m. blast takes care of the situation.

It is operated from the office of the Police Department.

JUSTIFIED AS A CURFEW
Also the lady who wrote an article about not liking the blast of the noon whistle, in our quiet peaceful town, I don't quite agree with her. Maybe her children are small, and don't stray far from home, but I have a few, who go visiting and orders are to come home when the whistle blows, and I think a lot of other mothers have the same idea, so kids at least know what time it is and scurry home.

Kiwanis Move Greater Vote By Citizens

A resolution to sponsor a campaign for greater interest in public affairs by the individual citizen, was passed at the Kiwanis club luncheon, Tuesday as Vice-President Robert Green presided in the absence of Henry Korsemeier.

Discussion of the low percentage of voters who have gone to the polls in recent local and state elections led to the resolution.

The club heard a talk on "The Radio Theatre" by Loren Pratt, who was formerly connected with the Charlie McCarthy program. Musical entertainment was furnished by Gus Rihert who played a piano solo of Chopin's Waltz in C Sharp Minor.

Prof. Irving E. Miller, professor emeritus of Washington State College, who is visiting in Sierra Madre, was a guest.

Receives Annapolis Appointment

The duties that befall a newspaper are varied. Many of the duties too often deal with the serious happenings of life. Of formed the News yesterday afternoon that Robert had won the competitive examination and he thereby received the appointment to Annapolis, entering July 1st, 1947.

The Congressman said Robert won the appointment purely by the merit of the examination which was held in Pasadena last July. The appointment was made from the 20th Congressional District by its congressman, Carl Hinshaw.

Robert is a student at Pasadena Junior College and will continue with his work there until he becomes a midshipman at Annapolis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. East of 377 North Lima.

course there are the rare occasions which make up for the run-of-the-mill, and nothing has been a greater thrill in some time than calling Robert Chas. East, Jr., that he had won an appointment to Annapolis.

BUY RANCH IN ANTELOPE VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce McGill have bought an 80-acre alfalfa ranch in Antelope Valley. Some remodeling will be done before they move there for their future home. The ranch is located out from Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Miller of San Gabriel Court finished their two week vacation at Catalina. They returned last week from San Francisco where they visited relatives and friends.

Experience, Background Training, Characterize Sierra Madre Teachers

A staff of 25 teachers, including an additional kindergarten assistant, will instruct this year's students at the Sierra Madre Elementary School. Ten members of the staff are putting in their first year in the local school system.

New staff members are headed by Charles A. Skutt, who succeeded Henry F. Korsemeier, as superintendent of city schools. Skutt came to Sierra Madre from the Bellflower Junior High School, where he was principal. He also served 12 years as teacher and principal in the Clearwater, California schools. He was active in civic affairs of the former communities, and is married and the father of two children. The Skutts are now living on North Hermon in Sierra Madre.

New director of the Kindergarten is Mrs. Mary Bush, late of the Bassett School, near Puente, and who previously taught at the Bevington Elementary School in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Bush received her A. B. degree from Broad Oaks, Whittier College. Her mother, Mrs. Patterson, will be remembered by many Sierra Madreans as manager of the school cafeteria for many years.

A new addition to the first grade teaching staff is Mrs. Saline Pascoe, last year at Duarte. Mrs. Pascoe was trained at the Harrisburg, Va., State Teacher's College. She was a student at the College of William and Mary, and

THE CONSTANT SCHOOL

Education has found its rightful place in the sun since the three R's of scarcely more than a generation ago.

Then, it radiated a limited light to a mere arc of the age circle. Most of our grandparents had "learned enough" if they had trudged to the one-room schoolhouse from the ages of six to twelve or fourteen. Most of our parents were thought to be sufficiently enlightened in matters that could be learned from books if they completed high school. They were "extra polished" if they further pursued two years of college, exceptional if they possessed an A. B. degree, and especially esteemed if they had mastered a professional or other advanced degree requiring two or more additional years of specialized learning.

Today, education is a multifold radiation of knowledge, broadened from the three R's by the advances of science, and embracing the whole experience of life. High school education is considered the barest minimum for meeting the complex problems of a world more closely knit together. An A. B. degree has become a mere first essential for a greater number of jobs. Professional enrollment has expanded to exceed the college of a generation ago. Specialized and practical training and the learning of trades, which have multiplied with the advance of science, have been made increasingly available not only in the public schools, but by the public for adults who have discovered that their sparse knowledge of yesteryear must be constantly supplemented if they are to keep abreast of a continuously enlightened nation and world. The handicapped, who formerly were left to a useless dependency on their families, have aided through education, through knowledge and practical skills made available, to an enlightened and more independent status in society. Veterans flocking to the universities after their contact with the other side of the world are a sure sign of the significance of education for an understanding of the rest of the world.

Today, more schools offering more knowledge in the arts and sciences and everyday aspects of living, are open to more people. Oldsters and youngsters alike are being afforded the opportunities of a continuous, increased, and expanded learning through instruction made available by organizational, community, state, and federal programs. Libraries, bookstores, radio programs, magazines and newspapers present obvious evidence that the call of the age is for more knowledge of all variety for more people.

The latest acknowledgement of education is in the lower arc of the age circle. In many states the five-year-olds have been included in the public school program. On the East and West coasts, particularly, private nursery schools for tots from two to five have become numerous. The recognized worth-whileness of such education for the lowest arc of the age circle received a decided impetus during the war with the establishment of nurseries for children of members of the armed forces and of mothers working in war plants.

Though this lowest arc, the pre-school age, is the latest to be acknowledged for educational possibilities, and the least acknowledged, it is by no means of the least significance. For careful research by the wisest authorities in education is proving more and more that the earliest years of life are the most important in that they set the stage for all learning that is to follow. Nor have the researchers forgotten that most fundamental factor in all education: the parents' pattern of living and state of being informed. It has been well established that the finest education can be in vain if laid onto distorted foundations. In combination with the nursery education the toddlers receive in the way of living and learning together (it is still amazing to some how much and how easily a pre-school child can be taught of matters that are the very basis of maturity), at the same time the parents are educated to learning possibilities of their toddlers, to a keener awareness of their own responsibilities, and

Back To School For Sierra Madre Youth

Sierra Madre Public School and grounds located on West Highland

School Bell to Ring for Nearly 800 Students

Six hundred students are expected to enroll in the Sierra Madre Elementary School when the fall term commences, Monday, September 16, according to figures released this week by the city school superintendent's office. This estimate is based on last year's peak enrollment, with declines occasioned by families leaving the city, and students in the advanced grades transferring to other schools, balanced against the expected increase resulting from younger children reaching school age, and the influx of new families into the community.

Despite the expected higher enrollment, no double sessions of classes are anticipated. According to Superintendent Charles A. Skutt, recent partitioning of the school cafeteria is expected to give adequate class room space, he said.

Expectation of a larger kindergarten enrollment resulted in the hiring of a second teacher for that department this year by the board of trustees.

School officials request parents, entering their children in the first grade or kindergarten for the first time, to bring the child's birth certificate, or a photostat copy thereof, as the state law is very strict on this matter.

Mrs. Florence Wilhelm, secretary of the city school board of trustees, pointed out that under the state law, a child entering kindergarten for the first time must have passed his or her fourth birthday before the previous March 1; and children entering first grade must have passed their fifth birthday before the previous March 1.

The value of having birth certificates verified at time of entry in school, was emphasized by the school board secretary, who recalled how many local people in recent years have come to the school building for verification of their dates of birth, when their original birth certificates were lost.

solution of all educational problems," Mr. Skutt said.

"Solutions of our common problems will be approached by the entire school staff."

A resume of the year's program will be released after the first regular staff meeting, it was announced.

Color Film Give Lions Metropolitan Water History

Members of the Sierra Madre Lions Club enjoyed a 25-minute color sound film Tuesday evening, depicting the history and development of the Metropolitan Water District.

Don Kinsey, publicity director of the Metropolitan Water District, introduced the film which was presented by Earl Williams, also of the water district.

Leo Sharp was in charge of the program, which followed the regular Lions dinner at The Old Adobe Cafe.

Business transacted at the meeting included a vote to arrange for the construction of three bicycle racks to be placed throughout the downtown area.

Local Food and Clothing Packages Reach Holland and Denmark; Letters Send Appreciation to Sierra Madreans

There is a great deal of personal satisfaction in sending food and clothing where it is actually needed but it has a ten fold compensation when letters of thanks return telling just what the packages meant.

Mrs. John S. Fergus, who has been very active in sending relief to Holland and England, submits the following two letters that Sierra Madreans who have ravaged the family clothes closet to send clothing abroad may know that it was a real Godsend. The packages mentioned below were sent from here in May.

Bloemendaal, Holland, August 20, 1946.

Dear Mrs. Fergus:
Your package arrived today and you can imagine how we enjoyed it. We thank you a thousand times for all the nice things you sent, as we are short of such a lot of these daily necessities for the household. We had to suffer so horribly from the German occupation those five years. You can't imagine how glad we are to be free again, to live and do and speak as we like.

With all the strikes it took the package three months to arrive, so we couldn't write earlier and thank you for all your kindness. Sincerely, Glory Kappen.

The second letter is from Prof. Langedyk, professor of history at the Hague.

Dear Mrs. Fergus:

We have helped several people

According to the current weekly health report poliomyelitis is continuing on a high level with more than 700 cases in the entire county for the year. There have been 7 victims of the disease in the Monrovia health district, of which there was one in Sierra Madre.

The health officer again cautioned against over-fatigue, especially during this epidemic and pointed out that in case any member of the family should have an unexplained fever, a physician should be summoned immediately.

Keep Your Pets And Appreciate Them for Life

The local chapter of the California Federation of Animal and Child protection has called attention to the fact that many people who take the responsibility of a cat or kitten should take the situation more seriously. The federation has come across many cases of people discarding a cat after it has passed its kitten-playful stage. People seem to think all they have to do is call the humane officer and their responsibility ends.

The entire group stopped at the Santa Anita Ranger station, securing fire permits and learning where and how fires could be made. It is important this year—NO OPEN FIRES—but forest stoves are placed in convenient places.

The outing ended with a luncheon for the mothers at the home of their leader, Mrs. C. L. Young, 214 Olivera Lane. The girls gave a swimming demonstration. Special guests were Mrs. Ora Olson, representing the American Legion Auxiliary and Mrs. Robert Newberry, chairman of the Camp Fire Community Committee.

Supervisors
Give Up Mt.
Wilson Plan

Purchase of Mt. Wilson by Los Angeles County for conversion into a park or resort was abandoned by the Board of Supervisors Tuesday following receipt of information from department heads that the project would be entirely too costly.

According to Supervisor William A. Smith, Board Chairman, the report showed the land had many acute hazards too costly to make safe, but a small percentage of the area that could be converted into parks, many difficult sanitary problems, provision of parking facilities too costly and but few recreational facilities now existing.

A report recommended the opening of the area as a park under private ownership.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fred LaLone writes of the charm of the Northwest as he finds it. Mr. LaLone is on an leave of absence from the Sierra Madre Post Office.

Fred J. LaLone,
1501 E. "M" St.,
Grants Pass, Ore.

Dear Mr. Ward:

Here we are in the heart of the Great Grants Pass Valley, completely surrounded by mountains wooded with jack and yellow pines. On the south, two blocks from metropolitan Grants Pass (population 8,000) flows the mighty Rogue River, famous these many years for the stories of fishermen. At a glance one might think of the gliding water as a peaceable river but it is the most treacherous I have ever put my hip boots into. Along the banks are acres of riverbottom farms, growing anything from hops to all kinds of truck produce, fruit trees and ladina clover, planted here instead of alfalfa.

Animal life is in abundance.

with open season on bear, deer and elk. Timber wolves are still in lesser numbers in certain areas.

To watch the steel-head and salmon run is a sight to behold, especially as millions of eels follow them to eat their eggs. Eels swim upstream and when they come to a dam or other barrier they use the suction cup below the jaw to inch their way up over the obstacle.

We former Californians now in Grants Pass are amazed at the backward ways of the north-west. Only through highways and main arteries are paved, bath rooms are few, houses unpainted and many things taken for granted in California are unheard of here. No one is in a hurry. I guess that's why I like it here, along with the peace and quiet.

So much for now.

Your friend,
Fred.

SEPTEMBER 4, 1908

Sierra Madre was the scene this week of the climax of a life drama of unusual interest, good for several columns in the Los Angeles papers and ranging from near-tragedy to comedy and then melodramatic in quality.

The chief actor was a divorcee from New York who located her missing ex-husband in Sierra Madre and, while in the process of having sheriff's papers served on him for non-payment of alimony, became quite theatrical on the appearance of "the other woman."

The first service at the new Roman Catholic chapel, Baldwin and Olive avenues, will be conducted next Sunday morning by Rev. Father Barth. Several persons from Los Angeles are expected to attend the service. Through the generosity of Father Barth, the Catholics of Sierra Madre are now provided with a comfortable house of worship which will be greatly appreciated.

Fasting, as a cure for many ills, is receiving much attention these days after having been in the background for years. M. Olsen, the shoe man, has been experimenting and after a 16-day fast declares that fasting does about all that is claimed for it. After taking nothing for 16 days but water, occasionally flavored with a little fruit juice for variety, Olsen began breaking his fast Monday morning by eating half of a beaten egg. Later in the day he ate the rest of the egg. Fasting is not difficult, says Olsen. It only requires a little will power during the first four days. During his fast, Olsen helped build a stone wall, worked on a barbed wire fence, and worked at his shoe bench at times. The loss of ten pounds he attributes not to the fasting but to the amount of hard work which he performed.

SEPTEMBER 4, 1931

Except that solicitation is confined to property holders instead of all the registered voters, a campaign is being waged by leaders against the Central Avenue improvement project rivaling in intensity recent municipal elections. The protest hearing on Thursday night will probably be one of the most lively meetings ever held at the City Hall.

The children of all communities of Southern California will be envious of Sierra Madre's youngsters if the Parent Teachers Association can find a way to avail itself of a very wonderful offer made for their benefit by Bill Hart, noted film actor and idol of young America.

The coming here of his friend, Burr McIntosh, has given Hart more than a friendly interest in this city. He has expressed himself as seeing here, in addition to the city's charm and natural beauty, a spirit of friendliness and neighborliness that greatly impressed him.

Recently during a conversation with Lee Shippey, Hart learned that the city is without a moving picture theatre and that local children are obliged to go elsewhere for their Saturday afternoon film entertainment.

Instantly, the film actor made a wonderful proposition. He is

ROCKET - BORNE ATOM MISSILES... Capt. Siedman Teller, USN, chief of the navy's guided missile school, who has stated that "World War III, if and when, will be a Buck Rogers-type of war with remote controlled rocket-borne atom missiles."

owner of about 26 moving picture films, including those in which he achieved his greatest fame. He informed Shippey that these are at the disposal of school children here; that he would loan them to the P.T.A. agency that would agree to exhibit them at the schoolhouse, with the distinct understanding that the showings shall be for the benefit of the city's children.

AROUND AND ABOUT

By EDWARD LLOYD VOORHEES

NORTHWEST ENGLAND—Mild adventures in English comfort.

My genial train companion, Mr. H., who left our train before it reached Windermere, my destination and the terminus of that line of railway, made the parting suggestion that I take the bus on to the pretty village of Bowness-on-Windermere. However, because of my 4-hour delay from making a wrong change of trains earlier that day, it was 10:30 at night when my train reached Windermere, and there was no bus in sight nor would be until morning. Seeing a large hotel on a hill only a short walk from the station I took up my baggage and walked to it, found a genial welcome, a comfortable large room and bed, and, after that hottest of days on the train, the most welcome bath of the season.

That night the 8-weeks' drought which had made the temperature so stuffy was broken by a heavy rain. Awakening late the next morning, which was a Sunday, I sat up in the great cool bed and gazed out of the window upon the broad expanse of Lake Windermere, above which the heavy gray clouds of the night's rain were already breaking up to let the shafts of sunlight through. After that Saturday's 12½-hour journey on various hot, crowded coaches, this morning was one of life's contrasts that make the spice thereof. After a cold sponge bath and a brisk rub-down I was ready for one of those substantial British breakfasts, which I proceeded to put away in its entirety—an excellent breakfast of oatmeal porridge, toast with orange marmalade, two soft-boiled eggs with fried tomatoes, a whiting fried quaintly with his tail stuck through his eye-socket, and passably good coffee—which, however, I preferred to the undoubtedly better-made tea as a breakfast dish. While the price of my night's lodging and breakfast was the double of what I had paid in London, there was a spaciousness and tranquillity about everything inside and out at the Riggs Windermere Hotel that were well worth the extra shillings, not to mention a quality of service which is beyond price and measurement.

After that splurge and a walk along the lake front, I was ready to move on to Bowness, two miles away, and en route the obliging bus driver, seeing that I was alone, "tipped me off" in answer to my inquiry—to a comfortable, clean, and inexpensive room at a private house across the street from the bus office. While these quarters presented a striking contrast in spaciousness and atmosphere to those I had just left, there was an appealing coziness and snugness about the little room over the street that added to that variety which helps to make satchel travelling a panorama of change. The obliging busman also directed me to the nearby "Sunbeam"—a little restaurant which, well named, was a rain soon set in again, and its kind manageress allowed me to take back to my little room after lunch her own copy of Shelia Kaye-Smith's "The End of the House of Aard." After weeks of casual browsing on nothing but newspapers and guidebooks, this absorbing tale of the changes wrought in a salty old English family by the fortunes of war—in World War I—gave me a very refreshing afternoon, as I lay propped up by pillows on a sure-enough feather bed beside a rain-splashed window three thousand miles from America.

Thanks to the long summer twilight in that latitude, I was able to get in a walk along the Bowness Promenade after the rain and at 7:00 P. M. went for a 2½ hour drive through a lovely hilly country of woods and pastures 'till we came to an estuary, at low tide, of the Irish Sea, and a little village with the intriguing name of Grange-beyond-Sands. Then turning south we came to the coast again at Morecambe where we saw in the dim distance to the south a tall, wreath-like object which a promoter assured me was the water-tower at Blackpool, which I am told is England's equivalent of Coney Island. We drove back by way of the road which passes through the large estate of Lord Sanlev, M. P., whose huge, portly father, the Earl of Derby, I had seen three weeks before with King George at the Royal Agricultural Show in Chester.

The next day in a touring car with two or three congenial passengers our driver took us on a winding tour of 90 miles touching on eight of the lakes. The day began highly-cloudy, turned to rain, subsided to mist, and broke to fitful shafts of sunshine—really an ideal day for that country of gray limestone hills dotted with sheep, and vales tufted with grand old trees and bunches of thickets, with gleams of water from brooks, rivers, and ponds, then sudden glimpses of long stretches of open water with cattle feeding upon the margin. It reminded me, more by contrast than by similarity, of the Killarney Lake country in Ireland. The landscape here seemed more stern and hard, yet somehow less wild, less untamable than that of Ireland, and quite lacking in the magical spell which I (probably entirely subjectively) felt along the Gap of Dunlow and the Black Water beyond on that memorable day along Killarney's waters.

There was a certain chill here in the Westmoreland air that made welcome the "rug" (laprobe) which the driver brought out and tucked about us three passengers in the back seat. Evidently of native wool, it contained in its plaid stripes and background, I noticed, the chief colors of the landscape around us—the misty gray and white of lakes and sky in its body, and in its crossed stripes the purple of the heather and the yellow of the gorse and the broom. As I noted these facts—and also the growing glow of comfort which its soft and honest wool gave to my knees mile after mile that chilly day, my heart was seized with a sharp pang of desire—like that desire which smote the heart of King Ahab to possess the vineyard of Naboth his neighbor. I wanted that warm and symbolically hued blanket to go back with me to America to brighten my days with its reminiscent colors, and comfort my nights with its warmth—until death do us part. Selah! But how to do it? Well, I could offer to buy it—and I hoped for better success than King Ahab had with Naboth (see I Kings 21, in the world's perennial Best Seller).

Super Chief
El Capitan
To Run Oftener

Departure of Santa Fe's Super Chief and El Capitan from Chicago and Los Angeles every other day instead of twice weekly, as at present, will become effective September 29. Both trains will continue to maintain their present schedule of 39½ hours between the two cities.

The streamlined Super Chief, which is an all-Pullman car train, will go into every other day service September 30, departing from both Chicago and Los Angeles on even-numbered days of the month. El Capitan, the railroad's deluxe all-chair car train, will operate on the odd-numbered days of the month, beginning October 1.

In addition to originating daily 39½ hours streamliner service between Chicago and Los Angeles, the new schedules will benefit the traveling public by substantially increasing the Santa Fe's passenger carrying capacity.

BALLING BABY TALK

BY MAXINE BALLING

FALLING DOWN STEPS is something every baby does at least once. The little things seem to be able to take a lot of banging around without serious injury. If you have stairs or porch steps and mental worry because of their temptation to a little crawler, come on down to the Balling Baby Shop. We have some of those telescoping gates, just like you and I had when we were little squirts, to keep us from taking nose dives. The one that opens out to four feet is $1.75. The six foot one is $2.05.

A LOT OF MOANING AND GROANING from the seven-to-teen-year-olds is a sure sign that they realize school opening is just a few days hence. However, I think that some of the GIRLS are sort of looking forward to it. You know... show off that healthy Bal tan... and the new sweater. We have gobs of sweaters in sizes 4 to 6, all the nice high shades, $3.50. We have our fingers crossed, and are phoning, and hoping that more of the larger sizes come in before September 11.

KIDS ARE EXPENSIVE. We know. We have three. Getting them ready for school puts a whopping big dent in the family budget. If you like the convenience of a 30 day charge account you can open one at the Balling Baby Shop. You can also "lay it away" with a little deposit.

HOPE YOU DON'T GET TIRED of our harping about the custom-made dresses, but they are so nice, and so beautifully made, and mothers "ah" and "oh" and carry on so about them, that we think you should see them. They make lovely starting-to-school frocks. They're $6.50 to $7.95.

Sort of wish I were going back to school. However, we have fun at the Balling Baby Shop. We learn a lot too, about people. We have learned that our customers are the nicest people in the world. The Balling Baby Shop is at 401½ South Myrtle, in Monrovia.

Schools Take Prime Interest Pupil's Health

Parents of Sierra Madre school children are assured that the city school system adequately guards the health of its students. In addition to the regular faculty, the school staff includes a school physician and a nurse, who also act as attendance officers. The physician is Dr. J. M. Furstman, district county health officer, who visits the school one day each month, for physical examinations and immunizations.

The nurse and attendance officer, Mrs. Hortense Wells, is at the school from 8:30 to 1:45 each day. She operates the school clinic, examining children who are not feeling well, or who show any symptoms of disease. She checks the temperature and pulse of those physically indisposed, deciding whether the child should be allowed to attend classes or needs to be taken home. She also examines all children returning to school after an illness, and in the capacity of attendance officer, checks up on unauthorized or unexcused absenteeism.

Legion Loses As Next Game Planned Here

Sierra Madre's American Legion soft ball team lost a shut-out game to Glendora, Friday evening, with the local club on the short end of a 6-0 score.

The local team's poor showing in contrast to their previous week's victory over Pomona was attributed to the absence of three regular players now on vacation, according to Minor Harkness, who acted as team manager in the absence of Waverly Pratt.

The Glendora team were reported to have had a very tough pitcher, and the only two hits for Sierra Madre were made by Bud McRoberts.

Next and last regular game of the season will be played in Sierra Madre, Friday, September 6, when Temple City meets the local Legionnaires at the school grounds at 8 p. m.

the Frog TALKS about ROBERTS MARKET and things

When he claims that he will love you
For a lifetime and a day,
When he whispers, "I'll adore you,
Though your hair has turned to gray.
Try and ask him—softly, meekly—
"What about if I grow fat?"
If he says, "Each pound I'll treasure," Smile—and let it go at that.
—Marion.

GOSH, HOW I PITY PAID columnists who must meet their "deadlines" day after day! It being my sleepy philosophy that one should never do today what can put off 'till tomorrow, I am always late with my copy. A fact which discomboobers the News Office almost to the point of mayhem, and which adds little to my own feeling of independence!

TO WRITE INTELLIGENTLY is a gift not expected of Frogs, I am sure. But I must repeat: the purpose of this weekly blurb is to make you know that—despite your dictionary—Roberts Market and Good Foods are synonymous.

TO DIGRESS FROM FOODS TO POLITICS: Are these guys pushing us into World War III? Is it inevitable that because of our idealism we must fight the nations whom we have fed and for whom we have already provided the munitions to wage war against us? I am told that until recently the Boys from the Steppes knew little about the use of butter except as a cosmetic; and that said Boys could make tea their own way only with CUBE sugar. Small items, no doubt. But there are other things:

THE POWERS THAT BE TOLD US several months ago that we must sharply reduce our consumption of grains, soybeans, fats and oils so that a life might be saved in Mittel Europa, particularly in the Balkans, where the wolf was not at the door but already was comfortably curled up beside the fireplace. So we tightened our belts a bit, all the while reading about the great stacks of surplus grains being piled in open fields awaiting transportation and mildew, and the government gave us figures explaining domestic shortages and the good work that was being done in foreign countries. But we wanted something we could understand. And finally it came through.

ON THE SAME DAY THAT THE GOVERNMENT announced that since the "end" of the fighting the UNRRA had sent over half a billion dollars ($500,000,000) worth of supplies to Yugoslavia, the Yugoslavians started shooting down unarmed American transport planes. A dondevamos? which is, I hope, "Whither are we bound?"

BY THE TIME THIS MEETS YOUR EYE, MOM (bless her) will be in Chicago. She left last Sunday for a well-earned vacation. I know, since you all tell me so, that these ad-columns are better when she is here. Wish her good luck; but bear with POP and me while she is visiting "Effete East" and becomes homesick for you and the Gang.

THE FRESH FRUITS AND VEGETABLES in my stall leave little to be desired as to price, quality and quantity. For canning, fresh Peaches are out, fresh Pears are in, and perhaps tomatoes are coming again! Between the OPA, the farmer and "unusual" weather, it is hard to predict the future. I can only say, we will always have "The Best at its Best."

THE BUTCHERS TELL ME that this week ends "freedom of meat". As in the past we will always put forth every effort to keep you supplied; although once again it is going to be difficult for you to get the cuts you want when you want them. Oh, well!

CURLY SAYS THAT IN HIS Department things come and go so fast he no more than mentions an item before it is gone. He does say that considering the advancing price of fruits—and being aware of the scarcity of sugar stamps—it would be well for you to buy No. 10 cans of Flotill Halved Peaches, and even a few extra jars of Jellies and Jams, his present stock of these items appearing to be adequate. This week we are able to sell you Maraschino Cherries. Better buy an extra bottle for Christmas! Aside from Grape Juice, other juices are in good supply here, including—of all things—that breakfast delight, S & W Liquid Apple.

All this, and much more—

THE GREEN FROG

P. S.—It doesn't matter how old we are there is always plenty to do, and with age we should know better how to do it.

Nearly 200 Take Swimming Instruction at Plunge; Results Please Officials

A total of 196 Sierra Madreans participated in the Red Cross Safety Swimming program at Canyon Plunge, which ended Saturday, with nearly 70 per cent completing the prescribed courses, according to Bill Murphy, instructor-in-charge.

Included in the total, were ten who received junior or senior life saving certificates, of whom five met additional requirements to complete the advanced swimming course.

Officials of the Red Cross who sponsored the Safety Swimming program were well pleased with results, according to Mrs. Florence Peterson, executive secretary.

Largest number of swimming students, 103, were in the beginners' classes, of whom 21 satisfactorily completed their work. The majority of this group were young children, who were taught to feel at ease in the water and who progressed to the point of being able to swim across the pool.

Out of 24 swimmers in the intermediate group, 17 qualified in the crawl, breast, back and side strokes, and demonstrated ability in diving and underwater swimming.

In the more difficult advanced swimming class, only five out of 14 entrants finished the course, which called for greater proficiency in the various strokes and an endurance swim of 30 minutes duration, as well as qualification in either junior or senior life saving.

Twenty-five adults were enrolled in the special night class, also a Red Cross swimming instruction in swimming safety. All of these people were swimmers, many of whom were interested in perfecting their swimming, abilities and in refreshing themselves in the fundamentals of life saving technique.

Methods taught in the life saving courses included the carrying of an unconscious swimmer, breaking the grasp of a drowning person, means of approaching a panicky swimmer, and procedures for getting a drowning person on shore. Also demonstrated was the proper manner of moving an unconscious person over a dock or up a five foot cliff.

Failure of a larger percentage of swimmers to complete the courses was attributed to irregular attendance. This, said Murphy, included those who left on vacations, or moved away, or who were withdrawn from the classes because of the country-wide polio epidemic.

Teaching children to swim at the earliest possible age, before they develop a fear of water, is advocated by the Red Cross instructor, whose beginners' classes this summer included several children under five years of age.

H. Vick as partners, and entered the metal products field.

In addition to the hamburger mold, which in its wooden form proved popular as a gift item in addition to the practical demand, the company is producing a patented cocktail pick set known as "PicTree" made from aluminum alloy with a highly silvered finish, and including eight metal picks on a circular base and stand. This item is aimed particularly at the Christmas gift trade, and will be advertised in the November and December issues of Esquire magazine, Goodwin said.

The Bunsie patty mold is designed, according to Goodwin, its inventor, for properly compressing, sizing and shaping a two-ounce meat patty to fit a bun. He also called attention to its usefulness for potato cakes, fish cakes, fritters and other foods served in patty form.

Sold as accessory to the mold are pads of waxed paper in which each patty is shaped. This invention makes the handling of food patties unnecessary. Goodwin pointed out, making for speed, uniformity and sanitation in food handling.

In addition to the item's utility value, company officials say its shape and general appearance have given it a novelty appeal reflected in sales.

Parts of the mold are produced by the American Dye Casting Corporation, and the product is assembled and sold from its Sierra Madre headquarters. Orders for the new mold have been received from throughout the United States, company officials say. Among these are orders from large department stores in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Oakland, Salt Lake City, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Goodwin expects to leave for the East this week on an extended business trip to close contracts for wider wholesale distribution of the Bunsie products.

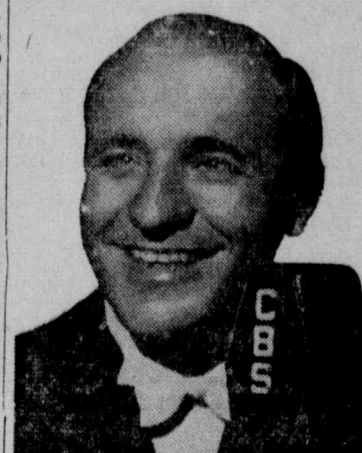

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Winn and daughters Linda and Victoria, 1225 Ramona road, spent the holiday week-end at the Winn ranch at Oceanside.

Camp Fire
Rally

A pre-school rally for all girls between the ages of 7 and 14 has been planned by the local Camp Fire Community committee. The date has been set for next Tuesday, Sept. 10, with activities starting at 10:00 a. m. and continuing to 1:00 p. m. in the City Park. A program of singing, games and handicrafts will precede the refreshments. The mission for the "Peep Show", pins, needles, thread and buttons will be included in the sewing kits which the girls are sending to Europe.

Sierra Madre is eager to give every boy and girl a chance to join some youth organization and Camp Fire is presenting this rally to give interested girls a chance to become acquainted with each other and with the leaders before busy school days claim their attention.

Deer Season Opens Sept. 23; No Hunting In State Parks

With the deer season in areas south and east of Los Angeles County due to open on September 23, hunters were warned today by chief of the State Division of Beaches and Parks, that hunting is not permitted in State Parks.

"State parks and beaches are provided for the recreation of all classes of the citizenry, and thus are utilized by many persons, other than hunters, who would be endangered greatly were hunting permitted within the park boundaries."

Hunting on State park land is a misdemeanor, and the co-operation is asked so that it will not be necessary to prosecute violators.

Major southern State parks are Mt. San Jacinto, Palomar Mountain, Anza Desert and Cuyamaca Rancho.

By TOMMY NEWSOM

Summer sauntered out, with the hanging of flags for Labor Day, and fall fell in.

At least it was supposed to. It used to. It used to seem nature's balance for spring, as the pendulum swung from the mental letdown and physical blossoming of spring-summer back to the tightening up against the cold and the mental charging of fall-winter. Fall was the vigorous sage; spring was the carefree infant.

I used to think of fall, too, as a balanced phenomenon in itself. To a five-year-old it brought the dejected feeling of being left out of affairs when the school-aged playmates severed summer ties with a gleeful stroke and pranced proudly away to their important and mysterious venture in schooling. But it also brought brightly colored leaves that fell and could be kicked along the sidewalks and tumbled through when the gardener had finished raking them into a pile for burning, and could be smelled and watched and fashioned into fantasies when the pile had been recouped and set into a pungent, smoking tepee. It brought the amber, fragrant suppers and the black James grapes, and the challenging suspense of wondering if a green snake would be in the next bunch you picked. It made the hickory nuts fall and in need of being gathered into baskets, the nicest sort of way to pass the greying Sunday afternoons.

Then came the thrill of joining the older playmates in the mystery of the schoolhouse, of finding new friends and learning new orders; of getting the new clothes, the first bookbag, the neatly boxed pencils; the overwhelming thrill of that first day in school: being assigned one's own desk, looking into new faces, wondering what the teacher would unfold next, and getting back home and finding the old surroundings forever different because of a strange and wonderful something. And with this thrill there came the agony of having to leave off early from the afternoon tumble in the leaves to get lessons done, the first pain of learning.

As the pain increased, the thrills increased. If it became harder to write goodbye to camp and vacation and the beach and swimming and lazy lolling in the lush of summer, it became more and more pleasant to take up the new outlook and activities that spelled fall: the rejoining old friends, the September State Fairs, the circuses, the tobacco auctions, the hayrides, the football games, the teachers' meetings that meant holidays. Until at college, when the mental burden became the hardest, the compensations became the fullest. The balance persisted, even after the school years, into the homemaking years. There was the house to tighten against the cold, but it was good to look forward to evenings with a log fire. There were the cold weather woollens to be shaken out and altered and new clothes to worry about, but there was also less washing and starching of cottons to be done. There was fall housecleaning, but closed windows meant less dusting. The coal rattling into the basement bins would soon be burning into the monthly finances, but the refrigerator wouldn't be so hard pushed for making ice. The budget had to be revised to allow for the higher operation costs of winter, but then business headed into an upward momentum in September and cheered the chances for a pay raise. Thunderstorms brought grey days but they also brought an end to watering and the skies were left brighter for the showers. Summer flowers turned brown but the golds and oranges and reds of autumn made for a glorious replacement.

They say, with the August corner turned, that it's fall, here, too. True, the yuccas are dry and rattling spears stuck at all angles in the crusty brown hills, but they've been that way since June. Caroline planted her winter boxes, dripping perspiration as she worked, and three days later found the sprouts; the seeds were no doubt hoaxed into thinking the toil drops were some Eastern autumnal sprinkling. A friend tipped me off to dash over to the Hotel dining room and see the charming last sight of the naked ladies and dusty millers before their September check-out, and I followed through in great anticipation to find a bouquet of waning August amaryllises and grey-haired weeds.

Yes, it's fall here. Women are eyeing new suits. Mothers are busy sewing and seeking clothes for school opening. The kiddies are reluctantly relinquishing vacation. The heating men claim they are working 16 hours a day taking orders for furnaces. Business is settling down to the September spurt. Football talk has started. And Bob and Paul have optimistically dispensed with their air-conditioners. (Bob's was the more complicated: a fan set in the wall backed up by a barrel on the outside of the house and filled with excelsior onto which dripped water that eventually found its way into a tin trough below which conveyed it to a drain. But Paul's, psychologically, was very effective: water splashing in front of the windows from a hose stretched over the roof.)

No doubt it is fall. Sadly, however, storms blow up and pass over without a single drop of rain for the effort. The hills are riper than ever for fire. There are no red and gold leaves. Watering seems more a problem than ever. And, defying the dust, the roses bloom blithely on. And though the first September morn brought the need of the heater and the promise of a reviving nip to the air, that imp, that freak, California weather, must have been playing on us an Eastern seasonal trick, for once again we languish in the same old summer heat.

Alack and alas, nature, as a Californian I shall have to revise my happy scheme of balance for your seasons.

Enjoys Boyhood Environment

Stanley A. Dunn is spending a three week vacation at the home of his grandparents, O. R. Cline, whose Sierra Madre residence is at 618 Woodland Drive. Stanley grew up in Sierra Madre, attended Wilson High and is a graduate of CalTech. He served in the chemical warfare as a First Lieutenant.

From here he will enter Johns Hopkins for post graduate work in chemistry. Mr. Dunn's mother, an artist and pupil of Ella Shapard Bush resides at Laguna Beach.

Special Teachers Provided for Physically Handicapped Youth

Physically handicapped youngsters of the city may receive individual instruction through the Sierra Madre Schools if arrangements are made by the parents. Mrs. Alice Hawley and Mrs. Thelma McElfresh have charge of this program, which provides one hour a day of individual instruction in the home for each handicapped child, with an additional three-hour assignment, varying with the individual's physical condition.

School officials pointed out that children physically unable to attend school in the usual manner must be enrolled through their parents or guardian. Forms may be secured at the school superintendent's office to apply for the special instruction.

In addition to this requirement, a doctor's approval is necessary to verify the child's physical fitness for home study.

California Stands at Door of Greatest Growth According To 1st Citizen, Gov. Warren

In a recent address Governor Warren made statements about the future of his state which every one should think over. "By every measuring stick available, California at this moment stands on the threshold of her greatest period of growth," Warren declared. "I believe this state can accommodate 20,000,000 people within the next 20 years and that there will be enough people here to make such a population."

Of greater importance than whether California will grow, however, is how the state will grow, the Governor said. "The numerical growth of our population should not be our concern so much as how our people will live," he said.

"It is far more important that our citizens become better than it is that they become larger."

"Our natural resources should not be evaluated by their extent or diversity, but by their usefulness to all the people—and by the manner in which we develop and conserve them, not only for our own use but also for those who are to follow us."

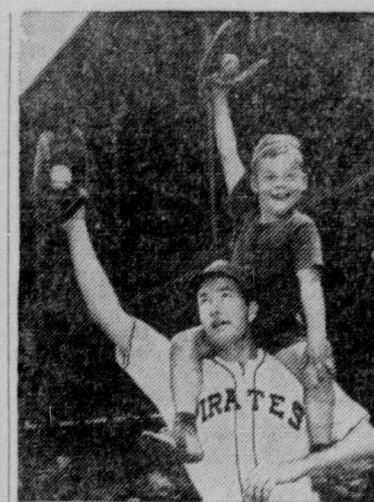

"While it is important that we have new industries, it is more important that we have sound industrial relations that will make happy workmen, profitable investment and a well-served public."

"It is important that we sustain our agricultural yields, and that we put our idle land to use, but it is of equal importance that we are able to compete with other agricultural states on equal terms and market our products throughout the country."

"It is important that we bring the water of our mountains to the soil of our valleys, but we must make sure that the water serves every purpose that our agricultural and industrial economy demands."

New Sugar Stamp Made Good Sept. 1

Spare Stamp No. 51 in the family ration books were made good September 1, for five pounds of sugar (for regular consumer use) and will be valid through December 31, the OPA announced. At the same time, OPA announced that Spare Stamp 49 will continue to be good for five pounds of sugar through September 30.

By extending for 30 days—from Aug. through Sept. 30—the period for which the current spare stamp for sugar is valid, OPA will make it possible for housewives in certain shortage areas to cash in their stamps. Maldistribution, largely caused by the difficulty of getting box-cars to ship sugar from producing areas to deficit consuming areas, has had the effect of making it impossible for housewives in certain sections of the country to cash their stamps for sugar.

Spare Stamps No. 9 and 10, each good for five pounds of home canning sugar, continue valid through October 31.

Sterling Silver Off OPA Schedule and Higher Priced

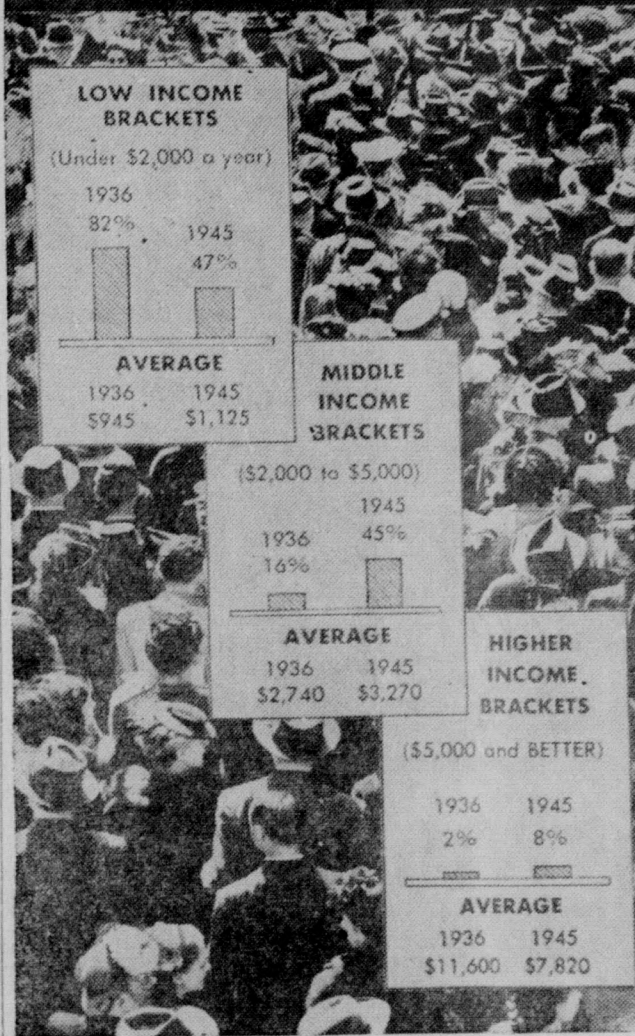

Sterling silver flatware, including knives, forks and spoons made of sterling silver, has been indefinitely suspended from price control, the OPA announced today. Sterling silver hollowware, such as sugar bowls, cream pitchers and gravy boats has been exempted from price control since December, 1945.

Today's action, effective at once, has been taken on two bases:

1. As the vast majority of silverware sold is silver plated, sterling silver flatware is insignificant in the cost of living. Silver plated flatware remains under ceilings.

2. The August 1, 1946, increase in the ceiling price of silver from 71.11 cents to 90.5 cents per ounce substantially increases the cost of manufacturing this silver. OPA would be required to grant increased ceiling to individual manufacturers in addition to permitting an industry-wide increase.

U. S. INCOMES RISE

STANDARD OF LIVING RISES IN U. S. . . This photo-diagram shows how the average income of American families has risen and how the incomes have been more equally distributed since the semi-depression year of 1936 to the postwar year of 1945. The figures show that millions of families have joined the middle income group, although 70 per cent still fall below the $3,000-a-year mark. In the lowest brackets the total has dropped nine million families.

"Don't flip that match!" warns the "Spirit of the Out-of-Doors" as she catches a careless city dweller about to throw a flaming match into the underbrush. The "Spirit" is Thelma Swanson, pretty employee in the Conservation department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the campaign to prevent brush and forest fires.

Bad News for Junior Children's Wheeled Toy Prices Upped

Manufacturers' ceilings on children's metal wheeled goods, such as tricycles, wagons, scooters, airplanes, trucks and automobiles, have been increased 4.8 per cent, the OPA has announced. Consumer prices will be increased by the same per cent.

The increase, effective immediately, is granted under standards for reconversion commodities and reflects increased labor and material costs—incurred by manufacturers since November 1945. Manufacturers may now increase their March 1942 prices a total of 19.5 per cent. Resellers' mark-ups have not been changed since March 31, 1946, and in accordance with requirements of the Price Control Extension Act of 1946, will remain unchanged.

It takes more than modern design to make a house truly modern. The things that contribute to the ease and convenience of modern living—electrical appliances, lighting, air conditioning, and other electrical services—depend upon proper wiring, and plenty of outlets and switches.

Adequate wiring adds little to building costs, but it adds much to satisfaction and to the resale value of the house.

Young Men Heard in Recital Wed. Eve. at Morgridge Studio

The recitals given by the pupils of Mrs. George Morgridge at her studio-home have unusual interest musically but the one given last evening was novel in that the program was presented by six young men, ages 13 to 16. Each gave a group of numbers for the approval of their parents and friends. The pianists participating were Michael Brown, Thomas Reynolds, Jr., Daniel Gourdeau, Paul Bauman from Sierra Madre and Joseph Capps, Jr. and Richard Duntley of the Oaks.

to the wisest way of making the home life such that it will set the stage for mature adults to come.

And so, today education is rapidly becoming recognized as the very core of life itself. It is no longer a mere three R's to be committed to memory by a handful of the populace during a handful of years. It is the fullest radiation possible of knowledge from the first year to the last. It is a continuous learning from the infant to the adult who in turn must teach the infant. It is the only answer to the problem that hangs like an atomic bomb over every head: the problem of world peace, which can only come through man's understanding of man.
